"My father gave me the greatest gift anyone could give another person: He believed in me."—Jim Valvano

As examinations draw near, the nerves start to kick in and pained expressions are seen on many of the students faces. For some, it is a time to test how much they remember from class, for others it is a test of how well they have revised their work. It becomes a time of great triumph and satisfaction for some, and for others it can be a time of disappointment and despair. It is our aim to help the students through this challenging period; to manage the exam nerves, to learn how to breathe and to trust that their initial answer is often the correct one. I wish all the students the very best of luck as they prepare for the examination period.
We believe in all of you, just do your best! ~ Amy Cardoso
